Nearly impossible to find, this is a unique and rare opportunity for recreational or permanent residency on Hornby Island – the summer playland of the Pacific. We are proud to present a spectacular hectare (2.4 acres) of forest, meadow, pond, and stream, all just a few minutes’ walk from Tribune Bay, the island’s iconic sandy beach often called the “Hawaii of the Pacific.” This exceptional property offers a tranquil meadow surrounded by mature firs, cedars, and maples, along with a year-round pond that provides a private sanctuary for owls, kingfishers, otters, and other wildlife. The combination of ecosystems on one property is truly rare, creating a natural haven that feels both private and serene. Whether you dream of building a permanent home, a recreational retreat, or a residence with a carriage house, this property presents a blank canvas to bring your vision to life in one of the most sought-after destinations on the West Coast.
